FROM THE ARTIST

The Liquid Mind album titles have always reflected my own life journey and lessons learned along the way. Liquid Mind XV: In The Love is no exception and addresses the very fabric that holds a healthy society together.

In my experience, love can come from many places and in unexpected ways... through acts of kindness, meaningful relationships with family, family of choice and friends, being of service to others, finding peace within ourselves through meditation and prayer, self introspection and examination, and through meaningful work in our careers... the list is endless if I open myself to expressing and receiving love. With so many options, one need never be deprived of love.

In an e-world that increasingly relies on electronic interconnectedness, it can be challenging for me to live my life “in the love”, as cultural and political differences of opinion often seem more extreme online; but in-person connection, seeing another person’s expressions and body language when we interact, can give me invaluable information and help me to avoid stereotyping others.

Fortunately, in a free society we do have choices about how we spend our time. As life goes on, hopefully our memories are filled with experiences of love from those we touched and who touched us. The gifts we share, the love we express to others, love of self and of self-care, love of humanity, spiritual love, all can be passed on to others to help make our world a better place.

Thank you so much for your support of Liquid Mind these many years, it’s hard to believe I composed the first piece in 1988 to help myself heal from anxiety and panic disorder, and 36 years later, I’m releasing this 15th “studio” album, the 19th album in the series (including collections). My deepest gratitude to all of you who encourage me to continue this journey. Lastly, a reminder: As Liquid Mind deeply relaxes some folks, please do not listen while driving or operating machinery of any kind, and drive safely at all times!

In love and gratitude,

In Memory:

Farewell, dear Donna Jo "DJ" Thornton, a champion of New Age and instrumental music from the very first day of my career. So many artists owe DJ a debt of gratitude, and her incredible legacy survives her at TheMorningBreeze.org. DJ gave me my first on-air interview many years ago, and her partner, John Luttrell and friends, continue to bring our music to the world.

Farewell, dear Mark Nelson, your light shined bright, thank you for your sense of humor and for sharing your unique intelligence and being with our world.

Thank you each and all for your smiles, your generosity of spirit and deed, and the love you bring to our world.

*Beyond the teeming activity of our lives on beloved Earth lies a great eternal Silence.
As we pause and listen, the Silence will speak. One of the wondrous voices is through the language of music.*
